columns, leading the way to the White House. Behind them the caisson and flag-draped casket will follow, then some members of the party that made the fateful journey with the dead chief, President Coolidge and other officials and the battery of artillery.

Passing through streets cleared of traffic the cortege will turn southward to the Capitol grounds, where the casket will be placed on Pennsylvania avenue, and then over the historic route that has witnessed every great moment of joy or sorrow in the nation's life. The caisson alone will enter the White House grounds, the troops swinging aside to line the broad avenue before the Executive Mansion, sitting motionless and with sabers at "present" until the casket has been lifted and carried into the state East Room where it will rest until Wednesday.

RECEIVE MRS. HARDING

Mrs. Harding will not ride in the procession from the station. Accompanied by such members of her party as she may designate, she will go to the White House immediately after the train arrives and will be received by Mrs. Coolidge and the wives of the Cabinet officers who will await with her the arrival of the body.

While the casket is in the White House there will be placed on the east wall of the room a portrait of one by the President and Mrs. Coolidge, one for the Supreme Court by Chief Justice Taft, one for Congress by Speaker Cullen, and one for the House of Representatives by Speaker Gillett, all of whom are accompanying the body, and also wreaths from the foreign and State governments.

On Wednesday at 10 a.m. the casket will be placed in the caisson for the journey over Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol, where it will be laid to rest in the Rotunda. The caisson will be pulled by a team of four white horses, and will be followed by a band of the Marine Corps, and a battery of the District of Columbia National Guard. The caisson will be followed by a band of the Marine Corps, and a battery of the District of Columbia National Guard.

MILITARY TO ESCORT

Gen. Pershing and his staff will head the military escort, consisting of the First Battalion, Thirtieth Engineers, and band; the Twelfth Infantry and band; the Marine band; the Fifth Regiment of Marines; the Navy band; a composite regiment of sailors; a battalion of the District of Columbia National Guard; the Second Cavalry, and the army band.

OFFICIALS IN LINE

The caisson will follow the troops and will be followed by the President's family, with President Coolidge immediately behind. Following in the line will be the Cabinet officers, Chief Justice Taft and Justices of the Supreme Court; former President Wilson, and other government officials, State governors and representatives of many military, fraternal and civic organizations.

Assistant Secretary Davis will lead the officers of the Army; Assistant Secretary Root will lead the officers of the Navy; Assistant Secretary Moos of the Treasury Department, the commissioned officers of the Coast Guard, Sixth Public Health Service and Assistant Secretary Drake of the Commerce Department, the commissioned officers of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

On the plaza east of the Capitol, the troops will swing into line facing westward as the caisson is carried up the long steps to the east entrance through a double rank of non-commissioned officers.

of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps especially selected as a guard of honor. The foot troops will remain in mass formation until the casket has been placed on the catafalque within.

Seals will be provided in the Rotunda for about 500 persons who have been invited to attend the funeral services to be conducted by Dr. A. Freeman Anderson, acting pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, assisted by Dr. James Sherr Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives.

Those present will include President Coolidge, Chief Justice Taft and other Justices of the Supreme Court, Cabinet members, Senators and Representatives and foreign diplomats.

The services over the great bronze doors will be thrown open and the public admitted to the Rotunda to pay its own last tribute to the dead President.

Those entering the Capitol to view the body will pass up the steps four abreast between lines of marines. Reaching the tier the line will separate, passing two abreast on each side to reform and pass out of the western end of the Rotunda down the long shaded concourse to Pennsylvania avenue.

From 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. a tide of humanity will ebb and flow.

At 5 o'clock the great bronze doors again will be closed and preparations made to bear the casket to the station for the final journey to Marion, O., where burial will be made at 3 p.m. Friday.

The route of march across the Capitol plaza and over Delaware avenue to the station will be lined on either side by foot troops. Escorting the casket will be the Twelfth Infantry, the First Battalion, Thirtieth Engineers, a battalion of the District of Columbia National Guard, the Second Cavalry, the First Field Artillery, the Third Cavalry, the Fifth Regiment of Marines, and a composite regiment of sailors.

President Coolidge and other officials, Senators and representatives will accompany the body to the station, but the actual train will be only the members of the party who made the tragic trip west with President Harding. This is in accordance with the wishes of Mrs. Harding. Mr. Coolidge, Chief Justice Taft, Cabinet members, and other officials will leave here Thursday evening for Marion.

After the casket has been placed aboard the train, a guard of honor which is accompanying it to Washington, again will take a solemn march, relieving the special guard which has been selected to act here. From the time the casket is placed in the train, the body will remain on the train until it reaches the station at Washington, where it will be placed in the caisson for the journey to the Capitol.

The commissioners of the District of Columbia issued a proclamation today requesting all places of business to close at noon when the funeral train arrives on Wednesday and also on Friday.

Orders also were issued today for the closing of the Lincoln Memorial and the Washington Monument on Wednesday and Friday, and also for the closing of all public athletic fields and the municipal bathing beach here.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—President Coolidge is the only man who ever entered the Presidency from the Vice-Presidency with a full knowledge of the character and ability of his Cabinet. Harding Funeral at Marion to Lack All Pomp
Will be Last Farewell to Loved Citizen
Body Will Reach There at 10 a.m. Thursday

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE)
MARION, O., Aug. 6.—Though the nation will conduct appropriate funeral services for Warren G. Harding as its President in Washington Wednesday, Marion on Friday will attempt to forget his exalted official position as head of the nation and bury him as one of its distinguished citizens.
For Marion the funeral services will be for the late President as that of a private citizen with full recognition that he was the most distinguished in the nation.
There will be no pomp or elaborate ceremony in the laying to rest of the dead President. What dignity there is will be through the presence of distinguished persons who journey here to pay last tribute to the man whose death has so far-reaching a effect on the nation.
In so far as possible will be a meeting of relatives and friends to bid a last farewell to a loved one. Such is Mrs. Harding's wish, and her wish will prevail.

EMPLE FUNERAL ORDERED
Orders for a simple funeral were received late today by Col. F. P. Lahn, from Col. C. O. Sherrill, in charge of funeral arrangements at Washington. Details for carrying out this order were to be furnished by Mrs. Harding to those near the family who met the funeral train in Chicago this afternoon. Her detailed instructions will be brought to Marion tonight by Dr. Carl Sawyer, son of Dr. C. E. Sawyer, Mr. Harding's personal physician, who will leave the funeral train at Willard, O.
According to Col. Sherrill's instructions, the funeral train will arrive in Marion at 10 a.m. Thursday. On this train with the President's body will be those who made the Alaska-Western trip with him and watched and hoped for his recovery in San Francisco. It will be the same train that bore the body to Washington. In addition to those who have so far made up the funeral cortege, the funeral train also will carry Speaker Gillett and President Proctor of the Senate Committee. Cabinet officers and Capt. Arthur Andrews of the Navy and Maj. C. M. Baldwin of the Army, aides to the late President.

PRESIDENTIAL TRAIN
President Coolidge, accompanied by other high government officials, will arrive on a special train at 1:30 p.m. Friday morning.
All Marion citizens were officially called upon by proclamation today by Mayor George W. Neely, to suspend all activities the day of the funeral and join as neighbors and friends to pay the tribute which is truly felt in our hearts.
Trinity Baptist Church, of which President Harding was a member, was thrown open to the public to allow to view the draped casket in which Mr. Harding died while attending services. Guards are stationed both within and outside the church.
Boy Scouts tomorrow will deliver to every Marion home a lithograph portrait of the dead President. They were furnished by the Marion Civic Association.

Silent Tribute Paid by Chicago Baseball Crowd

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE)
CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—The tolling of the bell in a near-by church and the wave of the umpire's hand today dropped a pall of silence over the players and thousands of baseball fans gathered in Cuyler Park, as they stood in silence and paid their respects to President Harding. It was said to have been the most impressive interval ever witnessed in Chicago.
The crowd, about 8,000, including a large number of children, joined in silent honors to the late Chief Executive. Not a sound was audible in the park, the fans not even conversing with one another during the five-minute interval, and only the flying of a few pigeons and occasional chirping of sparrows broke up the stillness.
The period was from 4:10 to 4:15 p.m., the time the Harding funeral train was expected to arrive in the city.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Announcement was made here late today that funeral services for the late President Harding in Marion Friday will begin at 3 p.m., central standard time. Directs Harding Special From Chicago Office; All Precautions Taken
(REUTERS DISPATCH)
CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—One man—Gen. Supt. G. E. Vilas, of the Northwestern lines, with scores of telegraph wires stretching thousands of miles terminating at his desk, has had entire charge of the Harding funeral train from the moment the train passed East.
With a dozen telegraph operators in the room, telephones at his elbow, maps of the entire territory to be traversed, he has had the train in his mind's eye constantly. Reports are flashed from every town and water tank the moment the train passes. Every wheel, bolt and rod on the equipment had been tested by experts. Men were stationed at every high-way crossing to prevent accidents. Every switch on the track was spiked previously to the passage of the train. Freight trains and switch trains were sidetracked at least an hour before the passage of the special. All freight trains were stopped at the crossing to prevent accidents. The funeral train went by and passenger trains slowed to six miles per hour.
Crack engineers and firemen of every division were chosen to handle the funeral train. A pilot train ran fifteen minutes ahead of the funeral train. This consisted of a baggage car and officers' car, carrying the engine of maintenance, signal engineer superintendent and master mechanic. A roadmaster, a car repairer, a fireman and signal engineer, all equipped with tools, rode with the funeral train.

People's Question Answer

Q: What is the meaning of the term dog days?
A: Dog days comprise the sultry season of summer during the months of July and August, so named from the fact that the rising of the dog-star, Sirius, the second star in the heavens, is coincident with the rising of the sun. The ancients thought this combination caused the intense heat of summer, and the malady of the dog days, hence the name. It was by mere accident that the rising of the star coincided with the hottest season of summer, in the times of old.

is known to have been practiced in the east at a very early period when thumb prints were a monarch's sign-manual. The permanent character of thumb prints was first put forward scientifically in 1823 by J. E. Purkinje, a professor of physiology, who read a paper before the University of Breslau advocating a system of classification. His work was taken up by Bewick, an English draftsman, who made a number of impressions, and later by Sir Francis Galton and Sir William Herschel.

Q: What does Shenandoah mean?

A: Its English translation is Daughter of the Stars. The valley which bears this name is famous in American history as a battleground of the French and Indian Wars; as a point from which Daniel Morgan conducted operations against the British in the Revolution, and later as highly strategic territory in the Civil War. One town in the valley—Winchester—is said to have changed hands seventy-two times during the Civil War.

Q: When did Sousa leave the Marine Band?

A: John Philip Sousa retired as leader of the United States Marine Band, July 30, 1892. He had been appointed principal musician October 1, 1880.

Q: From what part of the country does the East receive the bulk of its timber supply?

A: From the South and Far West. In a recent booklet, The Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, shows that the lumber industry has constantly shifted toward the West, where three-fifths of the Nation's remaining supply of saw timber is located.

Q: What is Firpo's nationality?

Q: What is the highest altitude in the United States at which snakes are found?

A: The oregonian species of the rattlesnake is found on Mt. Whitney, California, at an altitude of 8000 feet. This is the highest peak in the United States.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES

Protect the President

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—(To the Editor of The Times.) This death of our President should make us, the citizens of these United States, realize our thoughtlessness and lack of consideration towards our President. The necessary official duties of the office are crushing in themselves alone, really more than one man could carry. It is ridiculous to add to those duties the task of speech-making, the public reception and the banquet and reception which each city seems to feel essential. The President of any large business is hedged around with secretaries and office boys, who keep his privacy as unviolated as possible; yet we, the people, expect the President of this enormous business of running our country, to be at the beck and call of every man, woman or child who wants to see him, and if he is not thus free of access, we yell our heads off about it. We demand public receptions where he must stand and shake hands with hundreds of people, who pass in one continuous stream. I shall never forget the one I attended when Mr. Roosevelt was President, and the drops of perspiration trickling down his cheeks and standing along his forehead, while he looked as if ready to drop of exhaustion, I never attended another reception, though my home was in Washington for several years. And then these speaking tours, with the attendant hand-shaking at every cross road and small town along the route, the train stops at every station where the trains stop, the automobile rides through the hot sun, the heaps of things he must eat when he is tired to death; the late hours and the lack of rest; and those speeches he must make everywhere, standing bareheaded probably in sun hot enough to cook an egg. It would kill a dozen men if they tried to divide the work between them.

Isn't it about time something is done about it, or do we want to go on having our President, who by one drop in the harness broken in health, as is ex-President Will-

LONG BEACH, Aug. 5.—(To the Editor of The Times.) Although opposed to the election of Gov. Richardson, I am today one of his strongest admirers.

No one but a real man with a real backbone could have made the brave and successful stand which he has against the saturation of worse than useless legislation and taxation, which is the curse and disease of the age. Under the spell of the current delusion that even the laws of nature may be changed by writing contrary laws in a book and employing commissions and executives to enforce them, the people have bound themselves as in a gigantic spider web, until, like flies ensnared therein, they have little more power of individual initiative than merely to think, while the cost of the web strangles all business ambition.

There is a nation-wide reaction back to common sense just beginning, faintly noticeable at present, but growing, and Gov. Richardson is its strongest exponent. He stands for fewer laws and more power to real law, protection of property and life, less taxation and higher efficiency, less commissions, committees and Communistic cratinism and more common sense.

(REUTERS DISPATCH.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The Department of Commerce announced that, according to reports made to the Bureau of the Census, the costs of government for the city of San Francisco for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1922, amounted to $22,130,000, which was a per capita cost of $22.69. In 1913 the per capita cost was $14.74, and in 1915, $12.92, the totals for these years being $21,300,000 and $24,360,000, respectively. The per capita cost for 1922 consisted of expenses of general departments, $35.13; expenses of public-service enterprises, $4.39; payments for interest on bonds, $1.50; for outlays, $11.53. Payments for permanent improvement of highways were $1,400,000; of schools, $1,250,000; for water-supply system, $6,000,000.

In San Francisco property taxes represented 73.4 per cent of the total revenue for 1922, 63.3 per cent for 1913 and 61.1 per cent for 1915. The increase in the amount of property taxes collected was 6.3 per cent from 1915 to 1918, and 24.5 per cent from 1918 to 1922. The per capita property taxes for the three specified years were $45.71, $24.33 and $26.13, respectively.

Earnings of public-service enterprises operated by the city represented 5.3 per cent of the total revenue for 1922, 1.3 per cent for 1913 and 3.5 per cent for 1915. Business and nonbusiness licenses were 2.4 per cent of the total revenue for 1922, 7.4 per cent for 1913 and 7.3 per cent for 1915.

INDEBTEDNESS
The net indebtedness (funded and floating debt less sinking fund assets) of San Francisco was $125,330 per capita for 1922, $125.45 for 1913 and $22.69 for 1915.

For 1922 the assessed valuation of property in San Francisco subject to ad valorem taxation for the city corporation was $15,215,000. The levy for all purposes for 1922 was $21.51, this being a per capita of $49.32. There was no levy of the general property tax for State purposes and no separate county organization. But city and county of San Francisco.

The total revenue receipts for 1922 were $2,504,329, or $42.58 per capita. The per capita income of governmental costs over revenue receipts was, therefore, $6.95. In Berkeley property taxes represented 65.5 per cent of the total revenue for 1922, 69.3 per cent for 1913 and 61.1 per cent for 1915. The increase in the amount of property taxes collected was 10.2 per cent from 1915 to 1918, and 21.5 per cent from 1918 to 1922. ## The New Hupmobile

We feel sure that every Hupmobile owner, or even observer, will agree with us that in order to dominate its field, the Hupmobile has only to improve upon its own past.

In this new Hupmobile, that triumph has been accomplished in every important essential—with results in performance so brilliant that they validate more strongly than ever its legitimate right to be called the best car of its class in the world.

We direct the attention of Hupmobile owners in particular to these results, which they can absolutely count upon the new Hupmobile.

Noted as the Hupmobile has always been for settling down instantly to smooth, steady, straight-ahead going, this new Hupmobile has a coasting, skimming quality that surpasses any Hupmobile which has preceded it.

Prized as the Hupmobile has always been for smooth operation, this new Hupmobile is even more free from noticeable vibration.

Celebrated as the Hupmobile has always been for snapping away in the flash of a second, this new Hupmobile is even quicker on the trigger than any Hupmobile before it. Easy-riding as the Hupmobile has always been, this new Hupmobile—in front and rear alike—outdoes all of its predecessors in bump-absorbent spring action and restful riding.

Comfortable as the Hupmobile has always been, this new Hupmobile is more roomy and affords greater convenience to driver and passengers alike.

These magnificently improved performance qualities are produced by the engineering and other changes detailed below.

The new Series R-12 Hupmobile embodies improvements in motor, clutch and transmission, in addition to a longer chassis and new body models throughout.

The net results of the engineering improvements are longer life, still smoother operation, better engine operating balance, an increase of power and pronounced increase in acceleration and economy.

Heavier chankshaft, counter-balanced, with bearing areas 20 per cent greater. Light-weight alloy pistons and connecting rods. Maximum increase in power, about 10 per cent.

New two-plate clutch affords silent gear changes at all speeds. Transmission gears larger, heavier, longer-lived. Wheelbase lengthened. Length of front and rear springs increased.

Frame now 6 inches deep. Five heavy cross members. Spring shackles increased 50 per cent in bearing surface. Radiator 2 1/2 inches higher, improving both appearance and cooling efficiency.

Newest style full crown fenders. Drum headlights on all models—nickel-plated on the special types.

GOSSIP IN WASHINGTON
Fears of American Divorce Colony in Paris Set Aside; Capital Dogs Undergoing "Nose Prints" Now;
Illness Gives Haynes Short Rest

(BY THE OBSERVER)
(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Members of the growing American divorce colony in Paris need have no apprehension that their right to return to the United States, after sporting a full-fledged decree of freedom will be contested by the immigration authorities. The recent suggestion that would-be divorcees might jeopardize their citizenship in conforming to the French requirements of establishing legal residence abroad, as a preliminary to seeking a divorce will not hold water in the light of immigration statistics.

Views of prominent and moneyed Americans being held up at Ellis Island upon their arrival in the United States and subjected to the routine of an immigrant counted in the French quota were dispelled by official word that the establishment of a French residence on the part of a native-born American citizen which endangers his status is a matter of no consequence. A naturalized American must hurry his divorce proceedings if he is to return without having his status questioned. If he dallies in Paris more than two years the presumption is set up by law that he is willing to forfeit his American citizenship. Native-born Americans seeking freedom from marital ties in Paris also will find the laws of their country to their liking if they want to marry abroad and bring their foreign are really quite different when examined under his magnifying glass. Life for Roy A. Haynes, Federal Prohibition Commissioner, and his chief subordinate is not all beer and skittles. In fact, he has been kept so busy circumventing bootleggers that he has not had a vacation since his appointment to the post. The only time that he has spent away from his desk, except when traveling on official business of the Prohibition Bureau, was last week, when he was confined to his bed for a few days with a slight illness. The same is true of James H. Jones, Assistant Prohibition Commissioner.

The copper-laden crabs eaten by President Harding and said to have been responsible for the poisoning which caused his illness are a well-known Alaska phenomenon, according to Dr. J. H. Carpenter, associate of Frank O. Carpenter, globe-trotter and writer. In Carpenter's "Alaska, Our Northern Wonderland," is a paragraph which should have been placed in the hands of the cooks of the transport Henderson. It tells how the fish, and particularly crabs and crabs, in some of the waters of Southeastern Alaska, are infected with copper from the rich deposits of metal ore along the coast.

Hungry prospectors on the trail of crabs and crabs discovered the great La Touche copper mine by observing the greenish tinge of the crawfish. Captain Sandberg, noted finger-print expert of the metropolitan police force of Washington, groves successful upon a bad of smelly printer's ink and transfer the impressions to an official blank.

Detective Sandberg says the new wrinkle grew out of his discovery some time ago that the noses of cattle bore dissimilar lines, like the fingers of human beings. He tried it on several unsuspecting cows at the Old Soldier's Home here and found that he could readily distinguish Rossie from Bessie by the difference in their nose prints. And now he finds that Bowser and Towser, whose noses may appear as similar as two peas in a pod,

BOTTOM IS NEAR TOP

Some Earmarks by Which Interesting Conditions Are Approximated

Moody's Weekly Review of Financial Conditions in its current issue says in part:

"The selling of securities appears to be for the purpose of strengthening one's investment position rather than for that of raising funds, since business men as a rule are not short of working capital.
Bonds are too low in price to be sold at much profit by the typical investor, and the supply of loan-funds is great enough, so that strong reasons for liquidation are lacking; and this perhaps explains the inaction of the bond market."

"Any rational opinion of the stock market must be gradually developed and modified by the flow of events. Last fall it began to be evident that we were running into a 'shrinkage' in the market; and since then the general impression has been that the market was continuously being timidly followed. Since the latter could not be timed, we have consistently recommended that investors follow the policy of exchanging the higher grade and more stable securities, and we still recommend this policy. The most stable of securities are short term issues and AAA bonds."

"As to when the stock market will touch bottom, all estimates are unreliable. The following, however, are some of the earmarks by which one may identify the approaching bottom when it arrives:
Accumulation of funds seeking investment should be denoted by a decline of the market to a point below that of the previous year;
shown in our trade barometer;
and also by a shrinkage in pig iron output running two to three months, and the stock market itself should show a steady outflow of funds for several months to break to new low levels in spite of such bad news and pessimism. These are the chief earmarks."

BUSINESS NEWS OF BUSY MARTS

Offer Belvedere Water Bonds on Attractive Basis

Copper Output Increased; Steel Earnings

Exchanges to Close Friday to Honor Dead Leader

Hunter, Dulin & Co. announces the offering of $300,000 Belvedere Water Corporation first mortgage $44 per cent gold bonds, due January 1, 1944. The offering is at par and accrued interest, to yield 6.50 per cent.

The company is a California public utility, supplying domestic water to 25,000 people living in suburbs adjacent to the northeast boundary of Los Angeles, known as Boyle Heights, Belvedere, Laguna and Belvedere Gardens. These suburbs, covering an area of 3.32 square miles, are approximately four miles from Los Angeles business center, and are traversed by four electric car lines and three main boulevards.

The company derives an excellent quality of domestic water from eight deep wells, which tap water-bearing strata underlying the southern portion of the district. These wells have a combined capacity of 3,500,000 gallons per day, which is an abundant supply, as the average consumption during 1922 was 1,250,000 gallons per day.

These bonds will be secured by a first mortgage on all the property of the company now owned and hereafter acquired, which has been appraised by competent engineers at an average of $606,223, or approximately twice the amount of this series of bonds. No additional bonds can be issued for more than 50 per cent of the cost of new improvements, and only when the earnings after depreciation for the preceding fiscal year amount to at least one and one-half times interest requirements, and the estimated earnings for 1923 will be two and one-half times interest charges. Interest and sinking fund payments and all covenants in the deed of trust until one-third of the Series A bonds are retired are guaranteed by the James Investment Company, sinking fund has been created which will retire 60 per cent of the issue by maturity.

Net earnings in 1922 were over one and one-half times highest interest requirements, and the estimated earnings for 1923 will be two and one-half times interest charges. Interest and sinking fund payments and all covenants in the deed of trust until one-third of the Series A bonds are retired are guaranteed by the James Investment Company, sinking fund has been created which will retire 60 per cent of the issue by maturity.

The company possesses constitutional and perpetual franchises, and in addition a franchise from the county of Los Angeles, expiring in 1925. The issuance of the bonds has been authorized by the California Railroad Commission, and applications have been made to certify them as a legal investment for California savings banks.

UNITED VERDE
Production of 11,035,916 pounds of copper for the second quarter of 1923 is reported by the United States Verde, Espinoza Mining Company of Arizona, according to the Wall Street Journal. This compares with 10,224,586 pounds in the first quarter of the year. April output was 3,759,160 pounds, May 3,759,912 and June 3,517,744 pounds.

For the months of April, May and June copper was sold at a price slightly above 15 cents, but lower prevailing prices, according to the report, may prevent payment of a dividend in November at the rate of $1 a share, which was the amount paid August 1.

Excellent ore is said to have been discovered on the 800-foot level. Development work on the Jerome Verde ground had progressed about 1000 feet, but ore value in recoverable amounts were not encountered.

STEEL EARNINGS
Net earnings from operations after deducting all charges against the business of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company for the quarter ended June 30, 1923 were $4,511,740.66, according to the quarterly statement released yesterday. After allowing for interest on the funded debt and estimated Federal income taxes, the surplus available for dividends totaled $3,586,624.53.

Payment of the quarterly dividend of 1 1/2 per cent on the preferred and $1.25 on the common stocks left a surplus balance of $2,402,927.78.

The statement does not include earnings of the Steel and Tube Company of America, whose plants and assets were taken over by The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company on July 1, 1923.

FORWARD BUSINESS
Bookings of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in July were reported by Dow, Jones & Co. yesterday to have exceeded all previous monthly records in the history of the company, except periods during the "war" when contracts were of exceptional size. Orders for the first four months amounted to $47,280,000, which also constitutes a new high record for that period.

For the year ended March 31, 1923, sales totaled $125,460,115. The value of unfilled orders amounted to $78,000,000, as compared with $51,914,387 on April 1, of this year.

BUILDING BONDS
Stephens & Co. are offering $275,000 Balboa Building Company of San Diego first closed mortgage 7 per cent sinking-fund bonds at par and interest to yield 7 per cent. The Balboa Building is now under construction at the southeast corner of Fourth and E streets, San Diego, and will be a five-story fireproof office and store and theater building. Six stories will occupy the ground floor and basement on Fourth street, and the upper floors will be divided into thirty-four offices.

TO CLOSE EXCHANGES
President Frank H. Pettinelli announced yesterday that the Los Angeles Stock Exchange will be dark on Friday in obedience to President Coolidge's proclamation. The New York Stock Exchange will suspend business during the hour of the funeral services at the Capitol in Washington, and will be closed all day Friday when the funeral is held.

DAILY TRADE TALK

People of United States Great Fur "Consumers"; Treasury Certificates Popular

The summer fur trade is having a most successful season. Los Angeles dealers, as well as those in other larger centers, assert that, with the latest developments in its use, a new sales record will probably be established. This fashion is only about six years old and it is still chiefly confined to the United States and Paris, where it had its origin.

The Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York has been diving into the fur situation in this country and has been able, as a result of the investigation, to make some interesting and valuable deductions. The "summer fur," it is said, still forms but about 10 per cent of the hundreds of millions of dollars paid annually for furs by the people of this country.

The imports of furs in all forms in the fiscal year just ended, according to this authority, totaled nearly $100,000,000, against an average of about $25,000,000 a year prior to the war.

The $100,000,000 valuation is that in the country from which they are exported, and is therefore exclusive of freight and tariff duties, so that it is apparent that the ultimate expenditure may cross the $100,000,000 mark this year. When they come from these hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of furs used by our people? About one-half from our own forests and plains, and the balance about one-half from foreign countries, chiefly Canada, Russia, Siberia, China, Great Britain, France, Germany, the Scandinavian countries, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Argentina and India, for furbearing animals are found even in the tropical as well as the temperate and frigid areas of the globe, and we do range the globe for furs, since our official records show importations from no less than eighty-two countries, colonies and islands, though in a few cases, notably Great Britain and France, a considerable part of the millions of dollars' worth sent to us are drawn from foreign countries and their colonies and re-exported to the United States, the world's biggest importer and consumer of furs.

What are the principal classes of animals from which furs are utilized in the United States? The furs of the various classes, the marten, the squirrel, the mink, the muskrat, the beaver, the raccoon, the skunk, the badger, the otter, the weasel, the domestic cat is not entirely exempt from the scramble to obtain material with which to make the stantly increasing demand of fashion. Most of the "summer furs" are supplied by the mink, the marten, the squirrel, the muskrat and the Russian sable. A considerable quantity of furs is being used for the making of wraps and coats almost entirely of the foreign product, largely from China, India, Mongolia, lamb, rabbit skins and ermine.

In this increasing demand of the world for furs materially reducing the number of fur-bearing animals or likely to do so in the near future? Not to an extent yet appreciable, and it seems probable that any material shortage in the product from natural sources will be followed by an enlargement of the "fur farms" industry which has in recent years made limited contributions to the world's supply of furs. These very hands of the trappers and hunters, who in the fall and winter months ransack the forests and plains and mountains of the globe to obtain material with which to meet the growing demand from all parts of the world, and especially that of the United States.

The art of dressing and dyeing furs which is now in use in the United States is superior to that being practiced in other countries and there has been no complaint in any quarter of the use in the United States of injurious dyes in preparing furs for the consumer.

CERTIFICATES POPULAR
The Treasury Department has just announced that the net cash sales of United States Treasury Savings Certificates, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, aggregated $195,019,734, of which amount this Federal Reserve District sold $16,396,337.

These very hands of the trappers and hunters, who in the fall and winter months ransack the forests and plains and mountains of the globe to obtain material with which to meet the growing demand from all parts of the world, and especially that of the United States.

The Treasury Savings Certificates have attracted large numbers of small investors by reason of their absolute safety with profitable return. These little securities will continue to be offered to the public with a view of helping banks and other legitimate financial institutions to safeguard the funds of their clients, particularly those of moderate means who are not familiar with investments and therefore become victims of unscrupulous stock promoters and other highly speculative schemes. The certificates can be obtained at all money-order postoffices, from Federal reserve banks or their branches, and at the other banks and reputable bond houses.

"How Other People Get Ahead" is the title of a booklet recently issued by the Savings Division of the Treasury Department to aid in this effort. It gives the essentials of good investing and tells how to avoid dangerous financial ventures. This booklet can be obtained free by application to the Government Savings Organization in the Federal Reserve Bank.

PROFITABLE INVESTING

Being a Brief Discussion of the Movements in the Security Markets Together With Rules and Guides For the Investor

BY HERBERT R. JACKSON

Brokerage Department, Pacific Bond and Share Company
(This is the fifth of a series of articles written for The Times by Mr. Jackson. The sixth will appear as Friday's.)

CHAPTER 5
Permanent Investments
The advantages of buying securities outright, or at any rate on a conservative margin have been discussed in previous chapters, but it does not necessarily follow that all such purchases will prove profitable. The investor who buys securities outright and holds them for years without ascertaining periodically their status cannot do so without practicing the most profitable form of investing. First, he does not make a profit through selling out at a higher price than he paid. Second, his investing capital can only increase by whatever small amount he can save out of income and add to principal, and if only one of his investments should become worthless the savings of years might be lost.

One authority says that unless there is strong assurance when a man invests that stocks or bonds are going higher in market value it is a practical certainty either that part of the money will be wholly lost in the investment or so locked up as not to be available for other uses for months or years. On this particular point there is room for much discussion. Much would depend on the nature of the investment and the considerations which prompted it.

Degressing from the standpoint of profitably investing and considering only the factor of safety, if a so-called "permanent" investment does not measure up to the foregoing it will not be a good purchase for the speculator, yet it might, and probably would, prove suitable for the conservative investor from the standpoint of safety and earning power, always assuming that the investor keeps abreast of economic conditions which affect his holdings. For the forces of nature continually contend with one another, on the one hand to build up and on the other to tear down. These forces are continually at work and probably always will be. ## INVESTMENT FEATURES

BUSINESS: The Company supplies domestic water to 25,000 people living in the unincorporated territory immediately adjacent to the northeastern boundary of the City of Los Angeles and known as Boyle Heights, Belvedere, Laguna and Belvedere Gardens. These suburbs cover an area of 3.32 square miles; are about four miles from the Los Angeles business center and are traversed by four electric car lines and three main boulevards. This district has enjoyed an unusual growth in population and now includes six community centers and six large schools.

WATER SYSTEM: An excellent quality of domestic water is obtained from eight deep wells which tap the water bearing strata underlying the southern portion of the district. Tests and records of long usage establish the combined capacity of these wells at 3,500,000 gallons per day which is an abundant supply, as the average consumption during 1922 was 1,250,000 gallons per day. In addition, two lots in proven territory are being acquired for future development. The water is pumped into three groups of reservoirs located at high points, from which it is distributed by gravity. This insures a dependable supply under pressure and permits more economical and convenient operation.

SECURITY: A complete investigation of the water system was made by Chester H. Loveland, Consulting Engineer, for the Company in April, 1923. An independent investigation was also made by our own Engineer, Edward R. Bowen. Mr. Loveland reports the historical cost, with proposed additions, at $428,947. He estimates the present reproduction cost, less depreciation, at $533,500. These bonds will be secured by a first mortgage on all the property of the Company, now owned or hereafter acquired, and now valued at approximately twice the amount of this series. This margin will be protected, as no additional bonds can be issued for more than 50% of the cost of new improvements and only when net earnings after depreciation for the preceding fiscal year, or for 15 out of 16 months next preceding such further issuance amount to at least one and one-half times the interest requirements on bonds outstanding and those proposed to be issued.

EARNINGS: The rapid growth in the earnings of the Company is disclosed by the audit made by H. H. Cheadle, Certified Public Accountant. In 1920 net operating profit after depreciation amounted to $10,047.14; in 1921, to $13,612.32; and in 1922, to $30,231.31. It is estimated by Mr. Loveland that the 1923 earnings will amount to $44,000, which is supported by an actual return of over $13,000, for the first six months of 1923. Figures over a period of years show that on an average 40% of the business is done in the first half of the year. The net earnings in 1923 were over one and one-half times the highest interest requirement of 6 1/2% and the estimated earnings for 1923 will be 2 1/2 times this interest charge.

GUARANTY: Interest and sinking fund payments on Series "A" bonds and all covenants in the deed of trust, until one-third of Series "A" bonds are retired, are guaranteed by James Investment Company which will own all of the $250,000 par value of common stock of the Belvedere Water Corporation.

SINKING FUND: A sinking fund has been created to purchase bonds in the open market or to redeem the same by lot and is calculated to retire over 90% of this issue by maturity.

FRANCHISES: The Company possesses constitutional perpetual franchises and in addition a franchise from the County of Los Angeles expiring in 1925, entitling it to operate in the above territory. This franchise has been authorized by the California Railroad Commission.

PRICE 100 AND ACCRUED INTEREST, YIELDING 6.50%

All proceedings leading up to and including the issuance of these bonds are under the direction of Messrs. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher, and the title to the bonds will be certified to by the Title Insurance and Trust Company of Los Angeles.

THE TAX EATERS

The stabilization of Austria is being aided by the discharge of more than 100,000 persons who were on the pay roll of the Vienna government. Austria has always had an army of public leeches and on being freed from so many of them at once the government can take new life.

HAVE TO HURRY

More than 200 persons have been killed in traffic accidents in the streets of Los Angeles since the first of the year. In spite of ordinance and regulation the death toll is being swelled every day. People are in a great hurry to go somewhere. They are not sure where it is, but they are certain that they are in a hurry. It turns out to be the cemetery that they were headed for.

MISUNDERSTOOD

New European diplomats are making stress of the circumstance that the United States is the only one of the great powers whose army is larger than it was before the war. On the face of these returns they are seeking to convey the impression that we are the only nation increasing the military machine. Yet here we are pulling it down all the time and putting it purely on a police basis.

MADE IN GERMANY

An enterprising Californian found some compensation in his sojourn in Germany while recently abroad. He had occasion to send out a large number of circular letters to his trade and found an advantage in doing it in Germany. The postage on the mail cost him about $1000 in American gold, while the charges paid by Uncle Sam in this country would have reached nearly $5000. The difference paid most of the expense of the trip and the letter received unusual attention because of its foreign postmark.

LABOR GRAB

When labor leaders get to fighting among themselves for control of their unions for the sake of the graft it would seem to be a good idea for reputable workers to get out from under. In one of the Chicago unions a labor boss admitted with some pride that he had been collecting $10 a week from each of sixty men to whom he had given private membership cards. It appeared that he was boss of his union by sheer might. If anybody had the temerity to raise his voice in opposition he was knocked down and thrown out.

STUCK BY A PICTURE

The story of the picture is told in Current Opinion for July. Sir William Orpen was to receive $10,000 for painting three pictures of the Peace Conference, to be hung in the Imperial War Museum. The first two were delivered and accepted, but when it came to painting the third, Sir William couldn't go on. "It was arranged that I was to group them" (in a room of the Palace of Versailles), he explains. "The politicians and generals and admirals who had won the war. I made studies for them; I painted the room, and then I grouped the whole thirty-nine, or whatever the number was, in the room. It took me nine months' incessant painting; hard work. In spite of all these eminent men, I kept thinking of the soldiers who remain in France forever. . . . So I rubbed all the statesmen and commanders out, and painted the picture as you see it—the unknown British soldier in France, guarded by two dead comrades."

THE SEVEN GREATEST AMERICANS

Dr. James Harvey Robinson, who prepared the list for the American Magazine, wonders if Washington, Jefferson and Franklin "did not owe their fame largely to circumstance rather than to any exhibition on their part of highly exceptional ability or genius." He left them off the list, but was good enough to retain the names of Lincoln and Roosevelt. Henry Ford was a near winner of the third place. "But," according to Dr. Robinson, "the sorry fate of the Peace Ship and, especially, his anti-Semitic mania, reflect on Ford's knowledge and judgment when he waded through his 'bullshit';" so the third place was given to John D. Rockefeller.

The fourth place went to Thomas Edison, the fifth to Mark Twain, then came the quondam; with room for only two more names, four "pre-eminent candidates" had to be considered—John Dewey, William James, George Santayana and Thorstein Veblen.

While nothing derogatory is known concerning Mr. Santayana and Mr. Thorstein Veblen, Americans will be pleased to know James and Dewey were selected, because their names can be pronounced without going to a glossary. Dr. Robinson claims to have reckoned with all points of merit and fame, admitting surprise, however, that the mantle of greatness should have fallen upon Messrs. Dewey and James, rather than upon Messrs. Santayana and Veblen. Americans generally will understand his surprise better than his ideal of what constitutes merit and fame.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

In all constitutional states men pass, but the government endures. President Coolidge sits today in the executive office at the White House, surrounded by the Cabinet of his illustrious predecessor. He has pledged himself to maintain and bring to their fruition the policies of the Harding administration.

There may be minor changes for the new President is a man of character and firm convictions; but the Ship of State will continue to follow the charted course. To the present, the new President is known to the American people chiefly through the record he made as Governor of Massachusetts. His firm stand against radicalism at the time when an organized attack was planned on American institutions endeared him to the hearts of the American people; and he received the Republican nomination for Vice-President on the first ballot.

During the Harding administration he attended regularly the meetings of the Cabinet; but never by public utterance did he indicate that he was opposed to a single one of the Harding policies. In the Senate he was always ready to co-operate with the administration.

Now he is the Chief of State; and as time passes the country will begin to learn something of his personal views.

By his record, one reaches the conclusion that he will be more tactful, more astute than the late President. He is by nature a man of few words. His public utterances have always been brief, laconic to the laconic. He is not what the politicians term a gabble or a good mixer. Life is to him a serious business, and the government of men no trifling occupation. Justice will be tempered by mercy; but will be influenced by no mandala sentimentalism. In an address before the Republican State Convention at Boston in 1919, he said:

There is an obligation to forgive; but it does not extend to the unpunished. To give them aid and comfort is to support them in their evil doing and to become what is known in law as an accessory after the fact. A government which does that is a reproach to civilization, and will soon have on its hands the blood of its citizens.

By that utterance he has served notice on criminals whose friends come before him with petitions for executive clemency that they must confess their guilt and give pledges for atonement. He will not turn them loose unrepentant to continue in their evil course.

President Coolidge will lead neither aid nor encouragement to the isolationists, in the Senate or in the country. He favored the ratification with reservations of the Treaty of Versailles. He is known to be in full sympathy with the movement to have this country become a member of the International Court of Justice. And it is probable that he will urge upon the Senate when it convenes in September adherence to the policy in relation to the World Court championed by President Harding.

He has announced that the conference looking to the recognition of Mexico, now in progress in the Mexican capital, will be continued. He was in perfect accord with the Washington Disarmament Conference, an ardent supporter of the Four-Power Treaty, pledged to continue the policy of international conference in the interests of world peace.

It is possible that he will show less reluctance than his predecessor to co-operate in a movement to restore peace to war-torn Europe. While avoiding any alliance that would sacrifice a single one of the rights now enjoyed by the American republic, he will not shrink from international agreements that will tend to restore the confidence of all peoples in the supreme power of international right and justice.

President Coolidge has given frequent evidence that he possesses the courage of his convictions. He is not one who can be intimidated, or flattered. He has never sacrificed a principle to make a bid for personal popularity; and it is not at all likely that he will use the patronage of his high office to build up a personal political machine.

In national affairs New England is the home of silent men, who prefer to be judged by their actions; who speak little, but always to the point. In Massachusetts Coolidge was one of the political school of Senator Cabot, men of few words, but of unimpeachable personal integrity, unwavering in their loyalty and in their adherence to American institutions.

The opposition of La Follette, Borah and Johnson to President Harding and his policies will probably be still more embittered in relation to President Coolidge. But the country will love him none the less by reason of this opposition. His first test will probably come when he faces the revolt of the group led by La Follette in the Senate.

That the country has faith in Coolidge is proved by the orderly course of business and industry. There was no break in the stock market, such as followed the assassination of President McKinley. In fact, few changes of the Presidency have taken place with so slight an effect on the business of the nation.

The people have faith in President Coolidge, a faith justified by his works; and the Times is serene in the belief that his administration will prove this faith is fully justified.

PRESIDENT AND STATES

With the installation of Calvin Coolidge as Chief Executive the Presidency passes from Ohio to Massachusetts. At that, Ohio stands even with Virginia, leading the country as mother of Presidents.

The sudden and untimely death of Warren Harding at the very apex of his career draws attention to the strange fact—the superstitious may even see in it the finger of fate—that out of the six illustrious Ohioans who have filled the most exalted of human positions four have died in office.

William Henry Harrison died at Washington after occupying the White House only a short month from a sudden attack of acute pneumonia. He had nearly reached the span allotted by scripture to human life when elected on the Whig ticket.

country. In the first year of his second administration he, too, was the victim of the assassin's bullet and died on September 14, 1901.

And now Warren Harding has joined the company of the immortals, as truly a martyr to his devotion for his country as Garfield and McKinley.

Of Ohio's two other Presidents, Rutherford B. Hayes outlived his term of office sixteen years and William Howard Taft is Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Two other Presidents died in office: Zachary Taylor of Virginia, after serving one year and six months, and the Great Liberator, from whom God never created a more perfect man.

The number "seven" to those cabalists inclined is the number of portents. But among United States Presidents the number "six" appears to be the figure of destiny. Thus six Presidents have been elected from Ohio and six from Virginia; six Presidents and six Vice-Presidents have died during their terms of office.

THE BEAUTY SHOP
Delegates to the American Cosmetics convention report a rising tide of American beauty. The golden blonde or the Titian-tressed queen is not in top favor. Neither is the sleek-eyed but otherwise swift brunette. For the moment the glory goes to the ash blonde, with a face like a death mask. She is supposed to be spiritually interesting, albeit thoroughly ennui. There is a pale luster to her hair that cannot be achieved with peroxide. Just now the secret of this charm is well-guarded. Her skin carries the creamy flush of the map of Asia. Snapshots of Helen of Troy, Cleopatra of Alexandria or other glorious exemplars of womanly perfection would seem rapid and unthoughtful if measured against the photographic ensemble of the Winter Garden.

According to the beauty specialists the athletic girl, with her sun-tanned and wind-roughened complexion, is not in favor. The parlor girls used orange powder and rouge to achieve this effect, but are now going in for the pallid adornments of the cloister—that is, all but the cloister. The complexion comes out of a box and the spiritual effects are attained through the night lights. That is why the new beauty will almost seem to be wearing a mask. She will be pale and mysterious, but the colorlessness will not include the lips. There will be tinting of the lips and around the eyes which will palpably heighten the mask effect.

Off-hand one might say that he preferred the old-style girl, but there is no telling. When Maxie gets into her ghostly make-up she carries a new lure. There is a definite attraction about her that is not to be excoriated. But she will be the creation of the beauty shop.

The beauty-builders assure us that bobbed hair will continue to find favor. This "not only because of its comfort and cleanliness, but for the verve and elan which it seems to add to the wearer. It becomes so many people that those who ought not to indulge in it are yielding their tresses to the barber. Yet in many cases the smooth, parted-in-the-middle effect is smart and potent in its results. For others there is the permanent wave with its miraculous accomplishments in the extension of beauty.

But, no matter what the women do to themselves, we will not go back on them or treat them churlishly.

Don't Wait Till You Have To
"I just can't take a vacation," a man once said. "It's impossible for me to get away. If I stayed away things would simply go to smash."
One day he rose to shave, heeled over doctors, nurses and consultants were called in; a small fortune went to resurrect an overused, much-abused body and brain. And the smoke went up the chimney just the same.

RIPPLING RHYMES
THE PASSING YEARS
The years seemed long when I was young, impatient for that gorgeous day when I would win, with pen or tongue, a fame that never could decay. The future was a lovely land in which I longed to roam afar, and on its highest summit stand and hither wagon to a star. I had no past, I looked ahead to shining deeds in noble spheres; the days dragged on with sullen tread, the weeks were months, the months were years. And now that I am old and gray I sit and dream beneath my oak; the years go spinning on, the sun and moon and stars trail of smoke. Alas, I have no future now, no splendid hopes enthrall my mind; I sit at evening with my cow and always, always look behind. And ever shorter grow the years, like devils the seasons whirl; the summer comes and disappears and winter's blasts come to dir. The spring's impingement on the fall, May sephyras mix with autumn gales; old Father Time, who used to crawl, makes human sprinters look like snails. July the Fourth was lately here; I can't burn fireworks from my hair and turn to greet the glad New Year and, turning, have no time to spare.

EASY-CHAIR SCIENCE

BY RANSOME SUTTON
LIV. MENDELISM

This subject has to do with heredity and the laws which govern the transmission of physical and psychological characters from parents to offspring. All questions relating to genetics, birth control, degeneracy, reversion and the proper care of incompetents will ultimately be solved in the light of Mendelism; hence an understanding of this subject is of practical importance at this time. It will become more and more important as populations increase.

Unfortunately, the subject sounds difficult, but it can be understood by anyone of average intelligence. Indeed, the laws governing human inheritance can be learned, as Mendel learned them, by experimenting with plants in one's garden. It is not interesting to know that the same laws which control the transmission of traits and characters in plants apply with equal force to the animal kingdom?

Gregor Mendel was an Austrian monk, who died in 1884. He worked principally with pea plants and a dwarf variety, so long as the two varieties were planted apart from each other the traits produced tallness, each after its kind. Mendel wished to find out what would happen if the traits should be crossed with the dwarf.

Having planted the two varieties in segregated blocks, he waited for them to bloom, then removed the stamens, containing the pollen, from the dwarf variety and thus rendered self-fertilization impossible. Thereafter he sprinkled pollen from the tall upon the ovules of the dwarf and obtained an average crop of half-breed peas.

These peas Mendel replanted the following spring, expecting that the plants would be of intermediate size. It was, indeed, an interesting experiment—bringing together two strains of inheritance.

Every plant of the first hybrid generation turned out tall. The children had inherited the tallness of their fathers. Now the question arose: What had become of the hereditary factor in the seed which caused dwarfism? Had crossing killed it? Or did it still live in latent or dormant condition in the half-breeds?

Mendel planted the seeds the following season and they yielded one-fourth dwarfs and three-fourths tall; so he began to suspect that the dwarf factor had been hidden, showing that the bearers of heredity, lying latent in the first generation, had reasserted themselves and become completely dominant in the second generation; for these dwarfs were true dwarfs, showing no signs of tallness. Season after season

the same results were obtained. TREMENDOUS TRIFLES
Some people are altogether too dashed cheery. Especially about other people's troubles.
Not long ago I had one of those long, aggravating days, that give one such a fine chance to exercise one's self-control. Mine had been exercised to the point of exhaustion and I arrived home dog-tired, hot, panting, a trifle touchy, with a nice warm little smile carefully trained for the occasion. And there on the doorstep stood my cheery friend.
"Oh, I am so tired . . ." I don't be long. A cold-water wash began, with just a hint of warning.
"Nonsense, my dear," bubbled my cheery friend. "You are not tired. A cold wash and a bite of dinner and you will be as right as rain."
"All the same, I am tired," I insisted—quite pleasantly, but feeling touchy.
"Rubbish, rubbish. Don't talk about it. You are looking fine, never saw you look so well. You grow younger every day. What a duck of a suit—where did you get it?"
"Thanks," I said doggedly. "But I am very tired."
"Then run along in and wash up and you'll soon be all right. I have all sorts of things to tell you."

miss my tiredness so airily? It was my tiredness, not hers, so there. So I began to behave badly right away. Pitched my hat across the room, yanked off my shoes and wished there were some one—preferably the cheery friend—to throw them at. And was just about to indulge in a thoroughly comfortable cry and be suspiciously sorry for myself, when some one I rather like came in.

"Poor little girl. All tired out, aren't you? Had a hard day, dear? Here's a nice cool drink. There, that's better. Now lie down for a few minutes. Dinner can wait. Don't hurry. Here comes the baby. I'll take him downstairs while you get a little rest," he said, sympathizing beamingly.

"Oh, am not tired. I'll be all right after a cold wash. Oh, no, not a very hard day—just a few little tiresome things. Soon be over." And I sparkled up and found I wasn't really so very tired after all.

"I found it, the cheery person was quite right. But she had no right to say it. I was the only one who should be allowed to say it."

But all the same, when I went down, all nicely rested and thoroughly amiable again—I did nearly throw a chair at her when she beamed and said:

"There, I told you so. You should never give up your dear. It's all in our mentality. We are not tired if we don't think we are. But it was kind of worth while thinking I was tired for a little while, just to have that kind person I rather like get me up a bit. And just to have the chance to show how cheery I could be myself—when I jolly well was tired, so there!"

So far so good. But the next morning when the 3-year-old was cross and touchy, behold me telling him: "Oh, don't be a cry-baby. That's nothing to cry about, darling. For shame, fussy a big strong little boy like you crying for a silly thing like that."

"He wants to cry. He's very miserable. Oh, boo-hoo-hoo!" wailed my mighty atom. "He don't like you, you bad mamma," and the young man glared at me, just as I had wanted to glare at my cheery friend the night before.

He, lucky like, could still dare to expose his unheroic emotions. "Poor little boy, are you really miserable? Well, tell me all about it and I will cry too." I whispered with a very heavy change of attitude.

"Oh, no, don't go cry, mamma. I'm not a bit miserable any more, I isn't," grinned my small boy.

So it worked with him, too. But I, in the guise of the cheery friend, was quite right. He hadn't anything to cry about and it isn't nice for little boys to be cry-babies.

In fact, the cheery friend's system is altogether right—except that it doesn't work.

I remember just one line in a play of Mrs. Patrick Campbell's—"The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith!" In that the heroine calls out furiously: "Oh, how I despise a man who everlastingly wants sympathy—sympathy—sympathy." And the scorn in her voice grew in volume with each "sympathy."

As a sophisticated young miss in those days, I remember that I despised her magnificently. I too, despised people who wanted sympathy. I just knew that I was going to thoroughly despise any man who craved "sympathy" at my young hands. Ahem! I myself would never, never want "sympathy." Strong characters should never want sympathy.

But curiously enough—although that thesis is perfectly right—I have found that all the friends I ever had, all the friends I ever loved or loved me—were grasped by my heart with just sympathy. They could weep with me as well as laugh with me, they could sigh with me as well as play with me. They loved each other in our weakness even more than in our strength. Otherwise they just weren't friends. They were just "acquaintances." They "don't understand."

Or maybe they "understand" too dashed well.

The outstanding feature of a report sent to Washington yesterday by Collector of Internal Revenue Goodell relating to amusement taxes paid for the month of June was that the 1,424,000 people credited to Southern California by the 1920 census paid $1,330,000 admissions to places of amusement, compared with $1,000,000 were 10-cent or less admissions, and therefore tax free.

That $330,000.41 was collected in admission taxes compared with $139,804.03 for the corresponding period of last year, caused a record-breaking gain of 30 per cent. The total of taxes collected shows that approximately $3,225,000 was spent for amusements in Southern California during the month.

Diet and Health By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.A.

DIET FOR CHILDREN AND ADULTS, Candy—No. 11.

In children excess candy eating has far more serious consequences than it does in adults. Not only may it have the effects I have enumerated for the adult, but it very often clogs the children's appetites so that the foods they need for growth and development are not taken.

In a child with a diabetic tendency, candy excess can precipitate that disease. We know that many cases of diabetes have their start on the holidays when excess candy is eaten.

It used to be thought that excess candy was the cause of much dental decay by direct fermentation action in the teeth. We know now that the action of candy in causing dental caries is as much by indirect action as by direct action. In this way it causes the diet to become unbalanced and insufficient so that the lime, phosphorus, iron and other inorganic elements are deficient. For this reason there are not enough of them to be deposited in the teeth, so the teeth soften and decay.

The irritation caused by excess candy may also hinder the absorption of the inorganic elements, even if there are sufficient of them supplied.

Candy is a food—a very concentrated food, but an energy food only. Most candy has no protein, no vitamins, no inorganic salts, no anything but energy—calories. Pure molasses and maple candies are exceptions, for molasses and maple syrup do have some of the essential salts in them.

Molasses and refined syrups are by-products in the manufacture of sugar, and they contain practically all of the mineral matter of the cane. White sugar is demineralized because it will not crystallize if the minerals are left in it. There are no proteins, no fats, no vitamins, no mineral elements in white sugar. It is a pure carbohydrate food and good for a concentrated energy food if not taken in excess.

The cheaper candies may also have adulterants that are harmful. Nut candies, of course, have the good protein and fat and the mineral elements of the nuts and are good foods taken as a food, as part of a meal.

You must be very careful, mothers, not to give your little ones candy. Give but candies to your babies for the candy melts and the nuts are left to be swallowed unchewed, causing irritation of the digestive tract—or, what is very much worse, are swallowed "the wrong way" and get into the windpipe or the lungs.

The physicians who make a specialty of removing foreign bodies from the lungs say that they discover pieces of nuts among other things (safety pins, buttons, bits of wood, etc.)

I ever had, all the friends I ever loved or loved me—were grasped by my heart with just sympathy. They could weep with me as well as laugh with me, they could sigh with me as well as play with me. They loved each other in our weakness even more than in our strength. Otherwise they just weren't friends. They were just "acquaintances." They "don't understand."

Or maybe they "understand" too dashed well.

Emphasizing the unprecedented growth in motion-picture and other amusements in Southern California, Collector Goodell's report shows that for the entire year of 1918 the amusement tax amounted to only $181,000, as compared with $261,668 for July, 1923, alone, and $1,408,000 for the first six months of 1923. In 1918 the tax on 10-cent admissions was in force, but this tax was eliminated by the 1921 Revenue Act, and was not collected in 1923. With $1,400,000 collected for the first six months of 1923, the receipts for the full year should show a gain of 850 per cent over 1918. Collector Goodell said.

Taking the amusement attendance for June as a basis, the total admissions for the full year 1923 should reach $25,000,000, or twice the population of the United States.

Visitor Here Tells How Plans
Worked Out Describes Labor System and Oil Wells

The I. W. W. organization stands a size chance of over gaining a foothold in the Beaumont-Port Arthur industrial section of Texas according to Harry Campbell, a member of the Beaumont-Port Arthur Industrial Landowner Commission of the Westway-PacifiCorp Oil Company.

Mr. Gilbert, in addition to his Texas holdings in Houston, has large interests in California oil lands. He is spending a few days in Los Angeles by way of vacation and to look over his interests there.

"In addition to being an important oil production field, the section also is one of the largest oil storage refining center in the world, more than 600,000 barrels of finished oil are shipped or turned out here daily," said Mr. Gilbert.

The open-shop system of labor prevails throughout the en-

At a short time ago a group of T.W.W. agitators appeared in the local meeting to create unrest among the workers. They were invited to import 20,000 members of their organization from California. The Mayor of the town of Merced threatened that the Wobblies carried out their threat they would be put to work on the public works and that they would be liable for damages if they promised the Mayor they would assist him in carrying out any plans he might have. The Mayor of the town of the T.W.W.'s. The agitators disappeared from the field and nothing has been heard of the matter since.

The Texas gave the labor question in versus in the Department of Labor. The Department of Labor is not satisfied with the satisfaction of both employers and employees.

"We have unions in the field," said the Department of Labor, "but we have no power to dictate the policy to be followed by the industrial heads. The employers make laws and fire any workers they see fit to without consultation by the unions. The labor organizations confine their action to the collection of money as the insurance of their members and rendering them such other

WORKERS SATISFIED
The speed ship was adopted by the workers because it has saved an entire summer of idly standstill. The workers are all satisfied with conditions and the betterment of their position where they realize the advantage of this system and would be slow of them to change their minds. The district never has had a strike of any importance and is likely to remain so.

The ship channel from Beaumont to the gulf, which has been open since about seven years, is the result of the only enterprise of its kind the district was borne equally by the workers and the Federal government.

The cost was about $10,000,000," said Mr. Gilbert, "and of this cost the workers paid one-half and the owners paid the other half. The channel is thirty miles long, about five feet wide, thirty feet deep, makes it possible for the largest steamers to go from Beaumont to the oil gulf, and has made Fort Worth one of the most important oil-exporting ports in the world. Eighteen pipe lines are carrying the product of the oil production of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Oklahoma.

In addition to its port facilities provided by the ship channel, Beaumont is connected by means of lines with eastern Texas, Carrere filed suit for separation and maintenance against her husband, Alex, yesterday. She charges that this mistreatment consisted of numerous threats to kill her, and was climaxed by a distance conversation between herself and her husband in which he was in San Francisco. At the time he "called her down" and threatened to stop his remittances to Carrere, according to the suit.
